

BUS IN FREAK CRASH

In the mid-1950's this Red Bus crashed through the wooden retaining wall and fence into the Lake on the approach to the old wooden bridge at The Entrance. The front wheels of the bus landed in the water, with the nose of the bus resting on a small rowing boat.

Bystanders smashed the windows of the bus to assist the passengers to safety as the bus straddled the wall. No one was injured. A PMG truck was used to haul the bus back onto the road.
